$40m Toyota plant here

A $40 million factory will be built by the Toyota Motor Company at the corner of Grieve Parade and Dohertys Road, Altona.

The factory will provide jobs for 120 shift workers and 35 administrative staff. Altona Council has already given the go-ahead permit for site works to begin at the property, on the south-east corner of the intersection.

The building will be completed, if all goes according to plan, by July next year.

The factory will be used to assemble car engines.

The Premier, Mr. Hamer, will place the foundation stone of the building on May 2 this year.

In announcing the council's decision to grant the permit, the deputy mayor, Cr. Doug Grant, said one of the pleasing aspects of the company's plan was the landscaping of the site.

"Toyota, Australian Motor Industries and the contractors, Civil and Civic, have prepared detailed plans in accordance with the council's requirements.

"A pleasing feature is the architectural treatment of the outbuildings. It is an aesthetically appealing plan," he added.

Newport ruling hailed as win in west

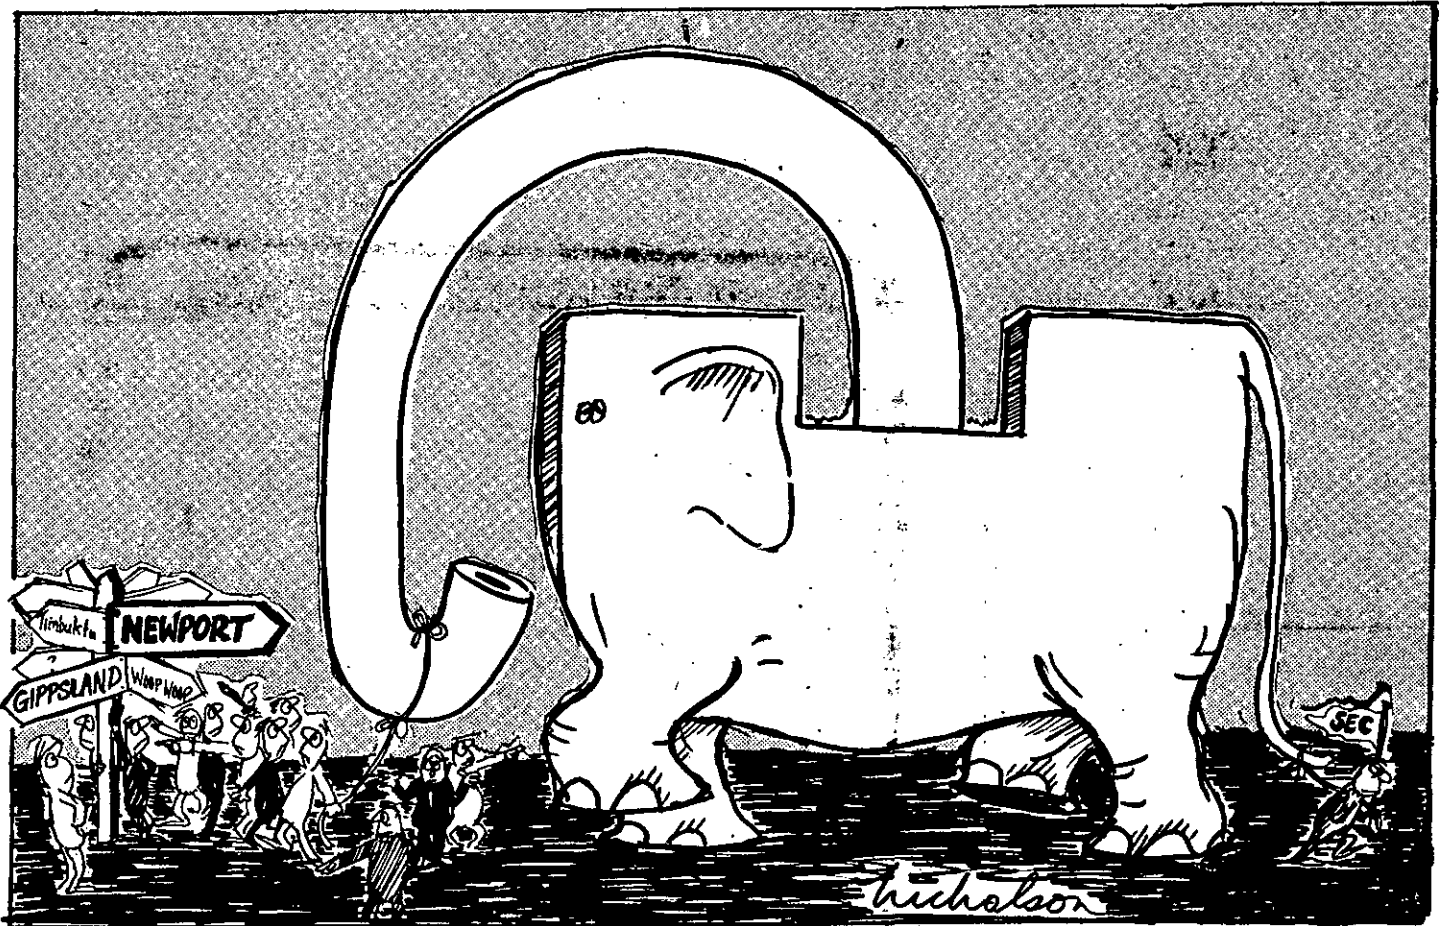

People had been hoodwinked by the SEC over the Newport power station issue, Mr. Ian Mill, president of the Western Region Council for Social Development said yesterday.

Mr. Mill said the weight of the report clearly showed that a power station at Newport would contribute significantly to pollution in Melbourne.

Cr. Alan Shaw, Altona's representative on the WRCSA, said yesterday he had not been consulted by Mr. Mill over the statement to the press.

Altona councillors have maintained throughout the Newport dispute that the power station has no relevance to them.

Cr. Shaw said he could not comment on Mr. Mill's statement made on behalf of the WRCSA, until he read it.

Mr. Mill said in his statement that the view of the panel proves "once and for all" that the long, hard fight of residents and community organisations in the western suburbs has been worthwhile.

"The decision vindicates the views of trade unions, conservationists and community groups," he said.

"The struggle around Newport has shown that the health of residents can be safeguarded only by active intervention on social issues, and by ensuring that authorities like the SEC are forced to come clean.

"People in the west will not allow their suburbs to become dumping grounds for environmentally and socially-damaging projects.

'Danger to public'

"The review-panel report shows that the secretive misleading and inaccurate action of the SEC would endanger the public."

Mr. Mill said the Government should compel the SEC to immediately give accurate information on alternative sites for the power station and the costs.

"Esso-BHP should not be allowed to exploit the present situation.

"The Government should take a firm hand to ensure that re-negotiated prices for gas do not allow a rip-off from the public or huge profits for the multi-nationals.

"Many people have been hoodwinked by the SEC for a long time over Newport.

"The report has shown that the SEC will not provide reliable information that public interest demands.

"A lot of money has been wasted on Newport because of the SEC's ineptitude," Mr. Mill said.

Youth leaders for seminar

Altona Council has chosen two local people to attend the Rotary youth leadership seminar in Melbourne during May.

They are Nancy Harvey and Graham Rielly.

Miss Harvey, of Fourth Avenue, Altona, is a kindergarten director at the Ronald Avenue centre. She began duties only this year.

Mr. Rielly, of Wren Street, Altona, is a second-year student at Melbourne University.

Mr. Ross King, chairman of the Altona Rotary Club, said last week he was confident the two council nominees "will represent us well. I'm sure they will benefit, and that the community too, will ultimately benefit."

The RYLA seminar will be held between May-8 and 15.

The council gave $260 towards the cost of sponsoring Miss Harvey and Mr. Rielly.

Task force meeting

The next meeting of the Western Task Force for the Disabled, will be held at 2.30 pm on Wednesday, April 20, at the Community Health Centre, Paisley Street, Footscray.

If anyone knows of a recreation centre with toilet facilities for the handicapped, please ring task force members Pat Tandy, 689 4133, Geoff Bell, 689 4888 or Peter George, 398 2063.

Thanks

Footscray High School has written to the council in thanks "for action taken to expedite the new building programme."

A tender for work at the school badly damaged by fire last year, has been approved by the Public Works Department, and work is expected to begin shortly.

The council has also received a letter of thanks from the Newport branch of the Labor Party, which said many people had told members they were grateful for the introduction of the library's book bus.

Resources

The State Department of Social Welfare has allocated $2600 to the Williamstown resource centre in Newport for its immediate use.

The department will also help the centre in the 1977-78 year if matching support from Williamstown council is available.

Resource centre members will discuss this with councillors and council staff this month.

Soccer club

Representatives from the Inter-Williamstown Soccer Club will meet members of the council's recreation and leisure committee to discuss ground and pavilion use by club teams this month.

Wrestler's man of 'glass'

Lochsley Hall, of Williamstown, (pictured) is the manager of the first fibreglass-materials shop to hit the western suburbs.

In case you're wondering what a fibreglass materials shop is: quite simply it sells fibreglass solutions and accessories.

And, according to Lochsley (his father named him after hearing the name in a poem by Lord Tennyson entitled "Locksley Hall") fibreglass is the "new generation" product.

"It can be used for just about anything, from repairing boats, cars, and swimming pools to making chess sets," he said.

The shop is at 97 Charles Street, Seddon.

A native son of Williamstown, Lochsley returned to the area last year and lives at Railway Crescent with his wife, Christine.

Christine works as a sister at nearby

In his spare time, Lochsley enjoys training at his favorite sport — wrestling.

Lochsley is one of Australia's top wrestlers. He has won two light heavyweight Australian titles and last year came second in the heavyweight title.

"I find there are more skills involved in wrestling than in any other sport I've tried," explained Lochsley.

$½ mil. wanted to start Newport leisure area Council push on quarry

The State Government will be called on to help with plans to develop the old Newport quarry as a regional park.

The Government will be asked to buy the southern half of the quarry site at a cost of $480,000. Pioneer Quarries own it.

Williamstown Council's environment director, Mr. Garnet Price, said yesterday he hoped that final plans for the quarry would include retention of the three lakes, and rock formations in the area.

"At present the ideas being kicked around by the council for the future of the quarry include a study conducted in 1975 by town-planning consultants Peter Tsitas and Partners," Mr. Price said.

Mr. Tsitas, in presenting the study to council, said the quarry "represents a unique opportunity to create an imaginative and relaxing environment in an area deficient in passive-recreation facilities."

The plans include a swimming lake, walking paths, bridle paths, a jogging track, amphitheatre, rock climbing and a geographical discovery centre.

Mr. Price said he believed it fair to say that the study would be "inspirational to detailed planning of the area."

"The whole planning has yet to be defined," he said. "We would like a regional park there, but for that we need Government help."

The renewed debate on the future of the quarry off Johnston Street, Newport, arose at the last Williamstown council meeting, when a letter from the Health Commission was discussed.

the tip site would be developed.

In its reply, drafted this week, the council said it did intend developing the area as a regional park, with the first stage of the work to begin immediately.

This will be to carry out tipping in designated areas of the quarry.

Only clean filling will be used.

Mr. Price said he would personally like to see walking tracks made around the lakes, and small canoes available for use on the lakes.

Stolen car hits two other cars

A former Brooklyn youth who crashed a stolen car into two parked cars was sentenced at Footscray Court last Thursday to 12 months in a youth training centre.

And he was ordered to pay $400 fines, or go to jail for 40 days. The car he crashed was the second he had stolen in two days.

Police recovered the first undamaged behind a cafe at the fruit and vegetable market in Footscray Road.

The youth, Timothy John Hutchieson, said he had no fixed address but police said he used to live in Almond Avenue, Brooklyn.

Hutchieson appeared in custody.

He pleaded guilty to stealing a car valued at $3000 from Yarraville, careless driving and unlicensed driving on March 25 and stealing a car from West Footscray and unlicensed driving on March 23.

Constable William Weatherly, of Kingsville police, said the March 25 smash was in Roberts Street, Yarraville about 3.45 pm.

Hutchinson was taken to the Western General Hospital and discharged about 8 pm. Hutchinson told Const. Weatherly that he stole the car in Somerville Road, Yarraville, about 10 minutes before the smash. It was unlocked and the keys were in the ignition.

Teach health in schools — planner

A community nurse told a meeting of teachers and health workers in Footscray last week that many of the personal disasters she encounters could have been avoided if school health education was more adequate.

Health planner with Health Collective, Ms. Diana Sonenberg, who convened the meeting said, "that's what health education is all about. Preparing students for life."

Ms. Sonenberg said an ideal health education programme would start in primary schools and flow on into secondary and technical schools.

She hopes to help achieve this ideal in the western region.

Ms. Sonenberg began provoking interest in health education when she was appointed to the Health Collective in August, 1976.

Believing health education to be of prime importance, she decided to find out what health-education programmes existed in the west.

"I discovered little and even the health-education centre at the Education Department told me few Victorian schools had full health programmes."

"I then sought out teachers interested in introducing these programmes and that led me to St. Albans, where at least one school, St. Albans East Primary, was conducting a nutrition and dental-health programme related to the school canteen."

Ms. Sonenberg called a meeting at Kealba High School. Every school in St. Albans was represented along with community health workers and State Department of Health doctors.

An interim committee to co-ordinate health education was formed.

That was last November.

In February this year, a meeting of teachers outside St. Albans was held at the Western Region Education Centre in Footscray.

A dietitian from the Western Region Health Centre and community nurses also attended.

That gathering discussed the possibility of in-service health-education programmes for teachers and set the ground for the second meeting last night.

"There we talked further about the concept of health education being a total thing and the problems faced by teachers at schools where health is not recognised as a subject," said Ms. Sonenberg.

Paisley High School science teacher Ms. Gayleen Smith told the meeting about a health programme she initiated at her school in Newport.

She said later that it developed as the result of students asking questions.

"We used to have a sex-education programme but now we also cover safety, first aid, hygiene and drugs."

"Students are enthusiastic but it is too early to assess the full value of the programme because it only began this year," said Ms. Smith.

She and Ms. Sonenberg are arranging a meeting of Altona and Williamstown teachers and health workers.

This will be held at Paisley High School next term.

Urgent query

The commission asked "as a matter of urgency", what the council's plans for the quarry entailed.

Some time had elapsed since the commission gave its approval for the development of the site for rubbish dumping, and it asked the council to say if

West's No to port works

No more reclamation at Williamstown or Port Melbourne should be done by the Melbourne Harbor Trust, the Western Region Commission has decided.

The WRC said in a letter to Williamstown Council that the interests of the region would probably best be served if expansion of the port took place within its current area.

"The current proposals of the trust are likely to degrade further the environment at Williamstown," the commission said.

Trust plans drawn up by the trust include extensions to Webb Dock.

"The proposals are likely to lead to a substantial increase in heavy traffic into and through the inner suburbs of the region."

"On the other hand, the expansion of the port would help industrial development and employment opportunities in the region," the commission said.

Expansion within the port's present area would best serve the west, if adequate transport facilities were provided to handle effectively increased port-oriented traffic.

The commission asked Williamstown Council's views on the proposal, and councillors last week referred the matter to the city's statutory planning officer for a report.

Council No to holiday bid

Workers with Williamstown City Council will not be given Easter Tuesday as a public holiday.

The holiday request was refused by the council last week on the casting vote of the Mayor, Cr. Peter Lalor.

The refusal was moved by Cr. Neville Mashford and seconded by Cr. David Linke.

The request came from the Federated Municipal and Shire council employees' Union.

The holiday was granted last year by the council for the first time. Cr. Ed Smith moved that in future years, both the municipal picnic holiday and Easter Tuesday, be given as public holidays to all council workers.

The move was seconded by Cr. Graham Proctor, but was lost when the vote was taken.

MAKE THIN CUT FROM WET SAND

When the sand bunker is damp, the forward and downward movement of the clubhead meets resistance. Consequently, it is necessary to "skin" the ball out of wet sand. Too deep a cut would cause the ball to remain in the hazard.

To make a thin cut beneath the ball, be certain that your legs slide forward toward the target during your downswing. This tends to level the bottom of your swing arc.

When the sand is dry, the cut of sand should be only slightly deeper. Unless your ball is really sunken, never try to "blast" it out with a huge "divot." Remember, the sand shot is easier to control if you minimize the depth of your cut.

SUNRISE

The fourth annual Easter Sunday sunrise service will be held at Gem Pier, Williamstown, on April 10.

But unlike last year, when the service was at the seaward end of the pier, it will be at the entry to the pier.

Fencing and buildings on the pier had made the seaward end unsuitable, a spokesman said.

And for the first time, the HMAS Castlemaine will provide a background for the service.

The service will be conducted by the minister of St Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Williamstown, the Rev. Martin Hanse.

Art show at town hall

The 13th annual Beta Sigma Phi art show will be held in the Williamstown Town Hall, on Friday, April 17, Saturday, April 18, and Sunday, April 19.

At last year's show, $8000 in paintings were sold.

Proceeds go to charity, and this year the money will be divided between the Shirley Challenor Anti-Cancer Fund and the Noah's Ark toy library for handicapped children.

Stolen car

He had intended driving it to where his car was parked, in Brooklyn, because he was too lazy to walk.

He was travelling at about 30 mph before the accident and the wheels locked when he braked at a 'pot-hole.'

Senior-Det. Kevin O'Shea, of Footscray, said that next day, Hutchinson admitted stealing a car from the Rheim car park in Geelong Road, from West Footscray on March 23.

He pushed it out, then started it under a nearby bridge. The ignition was not locked.

He drove to car to a hamburger bar, then to the market when abandoned it.

Hutchinson told police he had never held a licence or permit.

To Det-Sergeant W. T. Thompson, prosecuting, Hutchinson admitted convictions for unlicensed driving, driving an unregistered car, driving a car not covered by third-party insurance, two charges of stealing cars and breaking and stealing.

Tug master dies, 62

Captain William Geoffrey Forbes, master of the tug, Gabo, died suddenly at his home last week.

Captain Forbes, 62, lived in Gardenvale, but was known on the Williamstown waterfront.

He was in the Merchant Navy for several years before joining the tug in 1961. He became a tug master in 1967.

He has left a wife, Shay, and son, Peter.

Speaker at the short service, to begin at 6.30 am, will be the Rev. Donald Miller, of the Anglican Christ Church, in Newport.

The service is inter-denominational and attendance has increased steadily over the past three years.

Rubella danger

Parents, through ignorance or misunderstanding, were refusing to allow their daughters to have vaccinations against rubella.

Dr. Valerie Peers, Altona Council's medical officer of health, said this yesterday

But she has reported to the council that the acceptance rate in our area is possibly greater than 90 per cent.

Rubella, or German measles, is a disease that, if contracted by women in pregnancy, can handicap the unborn child.

Dr. Peers said school principals could mention the importance of rubella vaccination at parent-teacher nights "to reach those parents who, perhaps through ignorance or misunderstanding, have refused vaccination for their daughters."

Top table tennis men go up

Williamstown High School's Anchors won the A-reserve table tennis grand final last week — and lost its two top players as a result.

Playing in the Western Suburbs Table Tennis Association, Anchors cannot move into A grade because the association doesn't allow club entries. They also won the final last year.

Therefore the team's two stars, Jason Warland and Luciano Azzopardi, have been promoted to A grade independently.

They join other former WHS players Paul Miles, Gary Richardson and Raymond Lear.

Anchors defeated Naval Dockyards, which led the grade independently.

In the C grade final, Altona beat Hick Timbers 6-4. D grade was won by Seaweed City, which beat Braybrook 6-2.

Bank loan to boost power

The Williamstown Council will use $100,000 to be lent by the Commonwealth Bank to finance electrical works.

Williamstown's town clerk elect, Mr. Trevor Sloan, said yesterday the bank had always been deeply concerned with local progress. The council appreciated its continued help.

'Angels' triumph

Charlie Menzies "Angels" proved too strong for Williamstown CYMS on Saturday.

CYMS wilted under the pressure applied all over the ground by West. Newport, who won 14.13 (97) to 7.7 (49).

Best: Cain, Caulfield, Cavanagh, Durham, Lee and Leighton. Goals: Cavanagh 5, Cain, Dorrington 2, Busbridge, Broughton, Bunton, W. Menzies and Pitt.

In the second division, West Newport beat another Williams-town CYMS team, 12.11 (83) to 4.5 (29).

Best were Davey, Dorrington, Hyland, Pederson, Schenck and B. Lavington.

Seagulls lose classy game

Williamstown lost the game, but performed brilliantly against Geelong West on Sunday.

It was a high class match, with inaccurate but telling kicks for goal by West, and fewer, but better attempts by the Gulls.

The final scores were: Geelong West 13.22 (100). Williamstown 12.12 (84).

The home side peppered away at goals in the first quarter, but were constantly harassed by Williamstown defenders Frank Porcivina and John Potter.

The Gulls had two goals through Mick Mahoney while Geelong West only had five points on the board.

The Roosters scored their first major through Aylmer, but the Gulls replied and at the first change, Williamstown led by five points.

At the interval the Gulls led by 16 points — goals had come through Dixon, Brown, Boxall and Gardner.

However, after the resumption of play, the Roosters began putting the ball through the taller posts, and by the final change led by seven points.

It was a high class, play-on game at this stage, and Radojevic was starting for Geelong West.

The final quarter was a do-or-die effort, and Rodney Old came on to replace Bruce Alexander, and immediately posted a major for the Gulls.

The Roosters goaled twice more through Radojevic, and finished the game 16 points in front, despite another goal from Bob Percy.

Goals: Mick Mahoney 4, Greg Boxall 2, Daryl Dixon, Peter Gardner, Mike Brown, Bruce Alexander, Rodney Old, Bob Percy 1 each.

Best: Peter Gardner, Frank Porcivina, Mal Allen, Daryl Dixon, Brian

Lowe, Mick Mahoney, John Potter.

The Gulls were without name players Ray Powley, Jeff Scott, Glenn Towns-end and Rocky Burgess.

Williamstown Central Motors Award voting: Gardner 3, Porcivina 2, Dixon 1. Progressive tallies will appear weekly.

Reserves: At the seaside oval the seconds lost by 13 points. Geelong West 16.20 (116) Williamstown 15.13 (103).

Goals: Frank Briner 5, Brian Edwards 4, Peter Moore 3, Gary O'Donovan 3, Peter Hickman 1.

Best: Peter Hickman, Brian Edwards, Steve Taar, Frank Briner, Peter Moore, Rocky Burgess, David Smith.

The Gulls will play Prahran at home on Sunday, when the 1976 VFA 2nd Division pennant will be unfurled before the game.
